THE CITY OF SAN DIEGO
M E M O R A N D U M

DATE: August 12, 2015
TO: Honorable Chair Zapf and Members of the Smart Growth & Land Use Committee
FROM: Robert Vacchi, Development Services Director
SUBJECT: Prospective Short Term Vacation Rental/Home Sharing Regulations

This memorandum is written in response to the direction given at the Smart Growth and Land Use Committee meetings of April 22 and May 29, 2015. In accordance with that direction, Development Services staff compiled a draft code framework (Attachment 1) for regulating short term vacation rentals. Further policy direction is needed regarding the issues of frequency, occupancy and eligible housing types.

The draft framework proposes to: 1) create a new use category for short term vacation rentals that allows the rental of a dwelling unit as a whole for a term less than 30 calendar days within specified limits and includes flexibility to deviate beyond the limits with a discretionary permit; 2) modify existing boarder/lodger regulations to allow home sharing on a short term basis for a maximum of two adults where the owner resides on the premises and is present during the visitor stay; and 3) modify the bed and breakfast establishment regulations for consistency with the proposed home sharing regulations.

If further direction is provided on frequency, occupancy, and eligible housing types, the draft provides the location where those regulations could be incorporated.

An analysis is provided in Attachment 2 that highlights relevant state and local laws that pertain to this issue.

Analysis of Options for Short Term Vacation Rentals (Limited Use Criteria)

LIMITED USE STANDARD #1: OCCUPANCY

DESCRIPTION OF AN OCCUPANCY STANDARD

State law sets a public health and safety standard for occupancy in a dwelling unit of 200 square feet of floor area per occupant. The City is preempted from conflicting with the state standard, but can set a threshold for approval, as a limited use based on occupancy, and can require a discretionary permit for requests to exceed the local threshold up to the maximum occupancy provided for by state law.

Under existing City regulations a Residential High Occupancy Permit (San Diego Municipal Code Article 3: Division 5: 123.0502) is required for a single dwelling unit when the occupancy of the dwelling unit would consist of six or more persons eighteen years of age and older residing in a dwelling for a period of 30 or more consecutive days. Setting a limited use short-term occupancy standard, on number of adults residing in a dwelling unit for less than 30 days, could allow for more predictable enforcement and reduce conflicts with the existing Residential High Occupancy Permit regulations. Short-term high occupancy, over and above the limited use, could be regulated by a discretionary permit such as a Neighborhood Use permit, which is approved by staff with an appeal to the Planning Commission. This would allow applicants to continue to rent out high occupancy units if they receive permit approval, but with conditions of approval that would reduce impacts on the surrounding neighborhood.

LIMITED USE STANDARD #2: FREQUENCY OF RENTALS

DESCRIPTION OF A FREQUENCY STANDARD

In order to allow for predictability for property owners and enforcement staff, a frequency standard, for short-term rentals, could be considered. This standard would indicate the applicable zone and the number of days in a month that a short-term rental is allowable. Duration of rental period could also be included. For example, a limit on the frequency of rentals could at a minimum be applied within the RS zones, which are intended to be areas with the lowest intensity of development by comparison, and which currently do not specify a minimum stay for occupants of a single dwelling unit. In multiple dwelling unit zones, a limit on rental frequency could replace the existing requirement for occupants of a multiple dwelling unit to reside on the premises for a minimum of seven consecutive days.

LIMITED USE STANDARD #3: LIMIT ELIGIBLE HOUSING TYPES FOR SHORT TERM VACATION RENTAL

DESCRIPTION OF LIMIT ON SHORT TERM RENTAL OF COMPANION UNITS

Companion units are small dwelling units (less than 700 square feet), that are accessory to a single dwelling unit and that provide complete independent living facilities, including a kitchen. State law regulates companion units as “second units” and requires that they be approved with a ministerial permit by local jurisdictions. The purpose and intent of the state law is that companion units provide long-term housing that can be more affordable to lower and moderate income individuals and households than the typical market rate units in a neighborhood. Consideration of short-term rental regulations could address whether companion units or other types of affordable housing should be eligible housing types for short-term rental.

The City of San Diego regularly declares a local housing emergency due to the lack of available affordable housing. The City has an adopted general plan policy to provide diverse and balanced neighborhoods and communities with housing available for households of all income levels. Companion units are a small unit type that provides a more affordable long term housing option and the California Department of Housing and Community Development encourages local jurisdictions to facilitate and promote second units for that purpose. State law requires that local jurisdictions allow companion units by right in order to encourage development of these second units to meet local housing needs, which the City has implemented with a series of code changes since 2003 to facilitate development of companion units including the 7th Update (O-20081) and 9th Update to the Land Development Code (O-20481). Following is the purpose and intent of the state law regarding second units (companion units):

Government Code Section 65852.150 explains the legislative intent of the second unit law: The Legislature finds and declares that second units are a valuable form of housing in California. Second units provide housing for family members, students, the elderly, in-home health care providers, the disabled, and others, at below market prices within existing neighborhoods. Homeowners who create second units benefit from added income, and an increased sense of security.

Companion units are a type of housing most often sought out by seniors, students, and young professionals as an affordable long-term housing option for independent living (often referred to as a granny flat). SDMC Section 141.0302 requires the owner to reside in either the companion unit or the primary dwelling unit.
