

Students are here temporarily and most of their socialization is at the university, not in the outside communities. Those who have cars, drive to wherever they wish and those who don't ride along or take a bus. There is absolutely no need to remove them from District 1. Part of an education is learning to adapt to situations and the fact is UCSD isn't moving.

The housing problem is the fault of the University, they accepted more students than they could house, the onus is on them, not a community. I can empathize with them regarding living off campus, the cost and the fact they are missing some of the campus life. When Covid hit and they couldn't attend classes, did they still have to pay full price?

Leave all of District 1 as is, it functions very well.

Kindest regards,
Barbara Gellman
University City resident