City of San Diego and San Diego Humane Society Partner to Provide Animal Services to Residents

PARTNERSHIP TO ENSURE SAFETY, CARE AND HOMES FOR ANIMALS BIG AND SMALL

SAN DIEGO – Beginning today, the City of San Diego will provide animal services to San Diego residents through a partnership with San Diego Humane Society (SDHS).

“The City is very pleased to be working with San Diego Humane Society to provide this important service to our residents,” said Kris Michell, chief operating officer for the City of San Diego. “We know that pets are beloved family members and it is reassuring to know our animals will be receiving the attention they deserve from an organization with a reputation for delivering high quality care like SDHS.”

SDHS will offer a variety of animal services to the public including licensing, lost and found, spay/neuter, vaccination clinics and adoption services. For questions and contact information for specific animal services, please visit the City of San Diego’s website at www.sandiego.gov/animalservices.

“We couldn’t be more excited about extending the safety net to the City of San Diego and we look forward to joining them in providing great animal services,” said Dr. Gary Weitzman, president and CEO of San Diego Humane Society.
