In recent months and years, cities have declared climate emergencies, racism as a public health crisis, housing affordability crises, etc. My story is exploring what these declarations have accomplished. I'm speaking with a mix of cities. I saw San Diego declared a shelter crisis for the third time. I was wondering if I could speak with you about why San Diego took this action, the effects of the declaration, what changes/powers the declaration unlocks, and if there are any policy reforms/funding that came with the declaration.
