Ghost Gun Arrest in Pacific Beach Officers Confiscate Cache of Weapons, Money, and Drugs

On New Year's Eve, Northern Division officers responded to a domestic violence restraining order violation on the 2300 block of Grand Avenue. The officers found a loaded ghost gun during a pat down of 28-year-old Christian Wydajewski. While searching his vehicle, they recovered three AR15 lower receivers, a suppressor, jigs, and additional firearm manufacturing equipment.

Officers contacted the Ghost Gun Apprehension Team and obtained a search warrant for Wydajewski's home in Pacific Beach. During the search, detectives recovered two un-serialized AR15 ghost gun rifles. The features of the AR15's classify them as assault weapons. The rifles had distinct tooling in the fire control cavity indicative of firearm manufacturing. Detectives located a fully automatic conversion device, commonly referred to as a "Glock switch". This converts a semiautomatic handgun into a fully automatic weapon. Mere possession of the device is possession of a machine gun.

Three firearm suppressors, one loaded Glock handgun, two Derringer-style firearms, nine grams of cocaine, ammunition, high-capacity magazines, additional firearm manufacturing equipment, body armor, and approximately $2,000 were located during the home search. Wydajewski was booked into San Diego County Jail on multiple charges including possession of assault weapons, transporting a machine gun, possession of a silencer, and possession of a controlled substance while armed.
