Subject: Opposition to SB 79 – Request to Vote NO

Dear Assembly Members,

The Community Planners Committee (CPC), representing 41 Community Planning groups throughout the City of San Diego, urges you to vote NO on Senate Bill 79 (Weiner) (hereafter, SB 79). As the elected community voices for the city, we urge you to consider what is appropriate for San Diego and your constituents. [CPC has found no conclusive evidence that the City of San Diego actually supports this proposed legislation despite the SB 79 Fact Sheet released by Senator Scott Weiner, which indicates the contrary. (SB 79 Fact Sheet – Updated 7.7.25)] As explained more fully below, there is good reason to reject SB 79 in its entirety.

Our opposition is grounded in the sweeping nature of SB 79 that fails to fully contemplate the diversity of California’s geography, topography, infrastructure, and planning needs. Although, SB 79 proposes a fixed tiered approach and a “local transit-oriented development alternative plan” provision, presumably to address this reality, it fails. These mechanisms for density embedded in SB 79 are deeply misaligned with the characteristics and needs of cities such as San Diego.

As drafted by Senator Wiener, the sole representative for the combined City and County of San Francisco, SB 79 may address the challenges of his jurisdiction. However, unlike San Francisco, our city historically grew through a mix of urban, suburban, and even rural development. Indeed, while San Diego has vertically grown in places chosen for this specific kind of development, like Downtown, UTC, and more recently, Mission Valley and Little Italy, many neighborhoods are best served by development scale appropriate to their suburban settings and infrastructure capacity.

More importantly, San Diego is already meeting its state-mandated Regional Housing Needs Allocation (RHNA). Through recent community plan updates, San Diego has nearly tripled its capacity for more housing without resorting to a draconian development mandate like SB 79. As community plans continue to be updated, capacity will only continue to increase.

SB79 would mandate rigid development standards that fail to account for:

- Community context
- Local topography
- Infrastructure limitations
- Quality of architectural design

The measure disregards fundamental land use planning principles, including:

- Appropriate building height transitions
- Thoughtful street-level relationships between buildings and streets
- Harmonious integration with surrounding neighborhoods

We fully recognize that housing challenges persist at the state and local levels. Unlike SB 79, good planning that addresses these challenges requires more than imposing concentrated development within broad, predetermined circles near transit lines. In other words, mass transit should support thoughtfully designed communities rather than artificially inflate density. Let the San Francisco Bay Area pursue its planning strategies locally, without imposing statewide mandates that significantly diminish the ability of other jurisdictions to govern responsibly and effectively.

We implore you to represent the distinct needs of San Diego—and all of California’s varied communities—by voting NO on SB79.

Thank you for your thoughtful consideration.

Sincerely,

Victoria LaBruzzo
