One Killed in Ocean Beach Shooting

San Diego — The San Diego Police Department is investigating a shooting that killed a man late last night in Ocean Beach.

On September 10, 2025, at about 11:29 p.m., San Diego Police Communications received a report of a shooting in the area of 5000 Newport Ave. in Ocean Beach. Officers arrived on scene and located an adult man described as Hispanic suffering from at least one gunshot wound to his upper body. Officers and medics rendered aid at the scene, but unfortunately, the man did not survive.

Homicide detectives were called to the scene to investigate. Investigators have learned the decedent was involved in a confrontation with two men in a parking lot. The victim punched one of the men, at which time the second man produced a handgun and shot the decedent. The shooter and his companion, both described as White males, fled the area on foot west down the north alley of 5000 Newport Ave., then turned north toward Santa Monica Ave.

Detectives are working to process evidence, interview witnesses, and canvas for security video. Anyone with information regarding this incident is asked to call the San Diego Police Homicide Unit at (619) 531-2293 or Crime Stoppers at (888) 580-8477.
