EXECUTIVE SUMMARY

Every day in San Diego, people walk to school, bike to work, cross streets to reach transit, and drive to their destinations. While many trips are completed safely, traffic crashes remain a serious concern. On average, more than 180 traffic crashes in San Diego result in a death or serious injury each year. These crashes often occur on streets with similar conditions and disproportionately affect people walking and biking, older adults, and residents of historically underserved communities.

On average, more than 180 traffic crashes in San Diego result in a death or serious injury each year.

Vehicle speed is one of the most important factors in whether a crash results in a minor injury or a fatal outcome. As speed increases, the force of impact rises sharply, and the human body's ability to survive that force drops dramatically. Even small changes in speed can mean the difference between a survivable crash and a deadly one. Slower speeds also give drivers more time to see potential conflicts, react, and stop.

For these reasons, reducing speeds, especially in places where people live, shop, go to school, and access transit, is one of the most effective ways to save lives and reduce serious injuries.

San Diego's Vision Zero Commitment

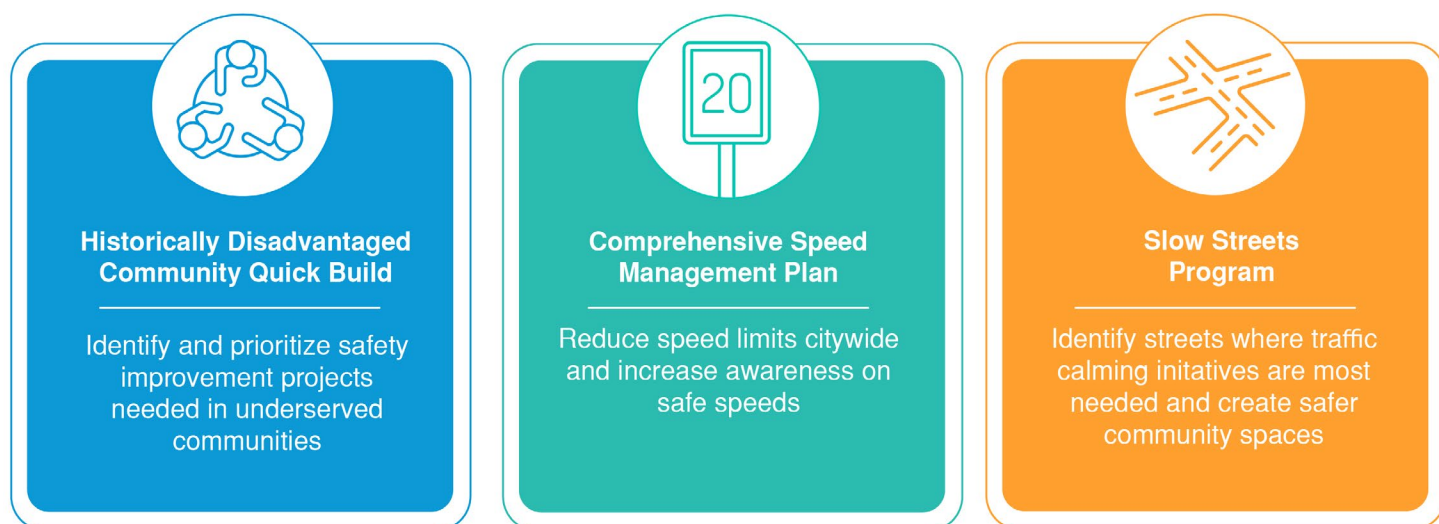

In response to these ongoing safety challenges, the City of San Diego adopted Vision Zero, a commitment to eliminate traffic fatalities and serious injuries and to create a transportation system where safety is the top priority. Vision Zero recognizes that people make mistakes and that streets should be designed to reduce the likelihood that those mistakes result in serious injury or death.

The City's Vision Zero approach relies on a coordinated set of strategies, including safer street design, appropriate and enforceable speed limits, education, enforcement, and public communication. This Comprehensive Speed Management Plan is one part of that interconnected citywide effort.

Safe Streets and Roads for All (SS4A) Grant

In 2022, the U.S. Department of Transportation awarded the City of San Diego $680,000 through the federal Safe Streets and Roads for All (SS4A) grant program. This funding supports the City's ongoing Vision Zero efforts and focuses on reducing fatal and serious injury crashes through safer street design, safer speeds, equitable access improvements, and community engagement.

The SS4A grant funded a supplemental planning effort with three key components:

This document presents the Comprehensive Speed Management Plan, which focuses specifically on identifying opportunities to reduce vehicle speeds across San Diego's street network where allowed under state law.

How Speed Limits Are Set Today

In California, speed limits must follow state law to be enforceable. For streets posted above 25 mph, cities are generally required to complete an Engineering and Traffic Survey (E&TS). This study looks at how fast people are driving, along with crash history, roadway design, and surrounding land uses.

Traditionally, this process relies on the 85th percentile speed, meaning the posted speed limit is based on how fast most drivers are already traveling. As a result, speed limits are typically set close to existing driving behavior. This approach can make it harder to proactively lower speeds on streets with higher safety risks, especially in areas with significant walking, biking, school activity, or commercial activity.

San Diego maintains approximately 3,185 centerline miles of public streets. About 842 miles are part of the City's E&TS network, where posted speed limits have been formally studied and established using this traditional approach. Many residential streets outside this network default to a 25 mph speed limit under state law.

New State Laws About Speed Reductions

Recent changes in California law now give cities greater flexibility to lower speed limits based on safety and street context, not only on how fast drivers are traveling.

Assembly Bills 43, 1938, and 382 allow the City to reduce speed limits in specific situations, including:

Safety Corridors

Streets with a higher number of crashes resulting in a death or serious injury.

What the law allows: Speed limits may be reduced by up to 5 mph on designated corridors where severe crashes are concentrated, even if higher speeds are common today.

Corridors that Generate High Concentrations of Bicyclists or Pedestrians

Streets where walking and biking are expected due to nearby destinations or the presence of sidewalks, bike lanes, or transit.

What the law allows: Speed limits may be reduced by up to 5 mph on streets where people walking or biking are likely to be present, based on surrounding land uses and facilities.

Business Activity District

Commercial streets where frequent parking, loading, and street crossings increase interactions between vehicles and people.

What the law allows: Speed limits may be reduced to 25 mph or 20 mph on qualifying commercial streets to better match the level of activity and conflict along the corridor.

School Zones

Streets near schools where children are regularly walking, biking, or being dropped off and picked up.

What the law allows: Speed limits may be reduced to 15 mph or 20 mph close to schools, and to 25 mph on nearby approach streets, depending on street characteristics and location.

These laws allow speed limits to better reflect how streets are used and who is present, particularly in places where slower speeds are critical for safety.

What This Plan Identifies

Using these new state provisions, the City conducted a citywide, data-informed assessment to identify streets where speed limit reductions may be legally and technically feasible. The analysis found that over 20 percent of San Diego's roadway network is eligible for potential speed limit reductions, including:

Safety Corridors: 189.6 centerline miles qualify for an additional 5 mph reduction as Safety Corridors based on meeting state-defined eligibility criteria, which include of at least one fatal or serious injury collision and contain street intersection characteristics identified in the City's 2024 Systemic Safety Analysis.

High Pedestrian & Bicyclist Activity Corridors: 32.6 centerline miles qualify for an additional 5 mph reduction as High Pedestrian & Bicyclist Activity Corridors because they are within 1,320 feet of a sidewalk, bikeway, and/or transportation priority area and contain an intersection identified in the City's 2024 Systemic Safety Analysis. All 189.6 miles of Safety Corridors also qualify under this category.

Business Activity Districts: 58.7 centerline miles qualify for reduced speed limits of 25 mph or 20 mph as Business Activity Districts because they are commercial streets with frequent parking, crossings, and business access that meet state criteria for lower speeds.

School Zones: 371.1 centerline miles are eligible for 15 mph or 20 mph school zone speeds because they are within 500 feet of a school. An additional 27.1 centerline miles are eligible for 25 mph approach speeds because they are between 501 and 1,000 feet of schools.

This Comprehensive Speed Management Plan identifies opportunities to reduce speed limits on over 20% of San Diego's streets (679.1 centerline miles), made possible by recent changes in California law.

The identification of eligible corridors in this Plan reflects planning-level analysis only and does not represent a finding that any street is unsafe or a determination that speed limits changes are required at any specific location.

A Major Step Forward, With More Work Ahead

This Comprehensive Speed Management Plan represents a significant step forward in aligning San Diego's speed limits with Vision Zero safety priorities. For the first time, the City has a clear, consistent framework to reduce speeds where they matter most.

At the same time, lowering posted speed limits alone will not achieve Vision Zero. Speed limit changes must be paired with street design improvements, education, and enforcement to meaningfully change driver behavior. The City will continue to advance traffic calming, intersection safety improvements, and public education alongside speed management.

Implementation and Next Steps

All speed limit changes identified in this plan require further evaluation, field verification, and approval by City Council before implementation. The corridors identified represent eligibility and opportunity, not automatic or immediate changes.

Implementation of this plan is estimated to take approximately one year and will require significant coordination, signage updates, and staff resources. As changes are made, the City will monitor outcomes and continue public engagement to ensure that speed reductions contribute to safer streets for everyone.

Together, these actions move San Diego closer to its Vision Zero goal: a city where no one is killed or seriously injured on our streets.

SAFE STREETS FOR ALL SAN DIEGANS

San Diego is committed to creating streets where everyone can travel safely, whether walking, biking, rolling, taking transit, or driving. Despite progress over time, traffic crashes continue to result in serious injuries and loss of life across the city. Many of these crashes are preventable, and addressing vehicle speed is one of the most effective ways to reduce their severity.

In 2022, the U.S. Department of Transportation awarded the City of San Diego $680,000 through the federal Safe Streets and Roads for All (SS4A) program. This funding supports the City's Vision Zero commitment to eliminate traffic fatalities and serious injuries by helping turn safety goals into real, on-the-ground actions.

The SS4A effort builds on San Diego's Vision Zero Strategic Plan and focuses on creating safer, slower, and more accessible streets across the city. Rather than relying on a single solution, the City is advancing a coordinated set of actions that address safety at different scales and in different communities.

The SS4A-funded work in San Diego includes three complementary components, shown to the right. This report is focused on the Comprehensive Speed management Plan.

Historically Disadvantaged Community Quick Build

Identify and prioritize safety improvement projects needed in underserved communities.

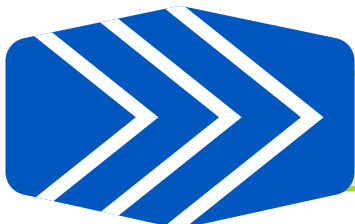

Comprehensive Speed Management Plan

Reduce speed limits citywide and increase awareness on safe speeds.

Slow Streets Program

Identify streets where traffic calming initiatives are most needed and create safer community spaces.

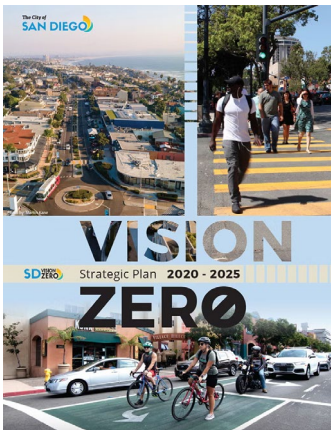

This report details the Comprehensive Speed Management Plan element of this initiative with the goal of identifying opportunities to reduce speeds on City streets.

CITY POLICY AND PLANNING CONTEXT

The City of San Diego Vision Zero Strategic Plan outlines a comprehensive, data-driven framework to eliminate traffic-related fatalities and serious injuries. Building upon its 2015 Vision Zero commitment, the City emphasizes five strategic actions: leveraging crash data to guide infrastructure investments; adopting long-term safe system principles to design forgiving, human-centered streets; prioritizing improvements in historically underserved Communities of Concern; reforming enforcement to be equity-focused and data-informed; and fostering a culture of safety through public education and outreach.

The Strategic Plan is available on the Vision Zero website here: <https://www.sandiego.gov/vision-zero/strategic-plan>.

A thorough review of relevant local and regional planning literature, design standards, and policy documents was developed as part of this Safe Streets for All supplemental planning effort. The review is summarized in the Safe Streets for All San Diegans Working Paper 1: Existing Conditions Analysis Report \(March 2025\).

UNDERSTANDING THE CONTEXT

On average, more than 180 traffic crashes in San Diego result in a death or serious injury each year. These crashes are not random. They tend to occur on the same streets and under similar conditions, and they disproportionately affect people walking and biking, older adults, and residents in historically underserved communities.

Vehicle speed plays a central role in the severity of traffic crashes. When vehicles travel at higher speeds, crashes are far more likely to result in life-changing or fatal injuries, especially for people walking and biking. Even small increases in speed can significantly reduce a person's chance of surviving a crash. Because people are vulnerable to vehicle impacts, slowing traffic is one of the most effective ways to reduce serious injuries and save lives.

San Diego has adopted Vision Zero as its guiding policy framework to address traffic crashes, grounded in the belief that no traffic death is acceptable and that a safe, equitable transportation system is essential to a livable city. Vision Zero recognizes that people make mistakes and that streets should be designed to reduce the likelihood that those mistakes result in serious injury or death. Speed management is one of the most effective tools available to advance Vision Zero and reduce the severity of crashes.

Source: Impact Speed and a Pedestrian's Risk of Severe Injury or Death. Brian Tefft, AAA Foundation for Traffic Safety, 2011

San Diego is a large and diverse city, with more than 1.4 million residents and a street network that spans coastal communities, dense urban neighborhoods, suburban areas, business districts, and school zones.

The City maintains approximately 3,185 miles of public streets that serve many different purposes, from regional travel to neighborhood access. As a result, safety challenges and speed-related risks vary widely depending on street function, surrounding land uses, and who is using the street.

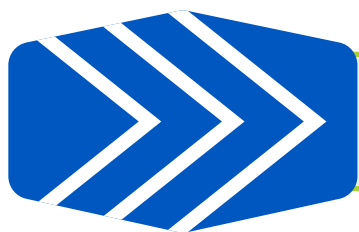

Each year, the City invests in a range of infrastructure improvements that support safer travel, including sidewalks, street lighting, traffic calming features, roundabouts, and separated bikeways. These investments are critical for reducing speeds, separating users, and improving safety outcomes, and they will continue to play an important role in advancing Vision Zero.

While these investments are critical, infrastructure alone is not enough. Lower speeds must be supported by a combination of appropriate speed limits, street design, and consistent enforcement so that expectations are clear and safer behavior is reinforced.

Enforcement plays an important role in reinforcing safer driving behavior and ensuring that speed limits are respected, particularly in locations with higher crash risk. When speed limits, street design, and enforcement are aligned, drivers receive clear and consistent signals about how fast to travel, helping achieve more reliable and lasting reductions in vehicle speeds.

Building on this understanding of how and why serious crashes occur, the Comprehensive Speed Management Plan responds to this challenge by providing a proactive, citywide approach to addressing speed as a systemic safety issue. The Plan builds on the City's ongoing efforts in engineering, education, enforcement, and policy by identifying where speed limits can be adjusted to better align with safety risks and how streets are used.

In coordination with this Plan, traffic calming and other safety improvements are being evaluated along the same corridors to reinforce lower speeds and improve driver compliance. Together, these strategies are intended to support safer travel for all users, especially people walking, biking, and taking transit, while also advancing broader goals related to equity, public health, and climate.

Severe injury and fatal crashes occur across San Diego, not just in a few locations. One of the most significant contributors to crash severity is unsafe vehicle speed.

ESTABLISHING SPEED LIMITS

Setting speed limits in California is governed by the California Vehicle Code (CVC). To be enforceable, speed limits must follow the requirements established in state law.

Under the CVC, speed limits are primarily based on observed vehicle speeds, crash history, and traffic and street characteristics. For most streets posted above 25 mph, cities are required to conduct an Engineering and Traffic Survey (E&TS) to establish or update the speed limit. The City of San Diego conducts E&TS studies on approximately 842 miles of streets as part of its responsibility to operate and maintain the public right of way. These studies are performed on a 7-14 year cycle.

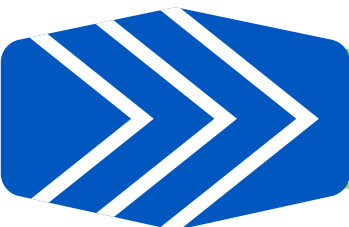

An E&TS is a formal, standardized process used statewide to ensure speed limits are set consistently and appropriately. The City follows procedures established in the CVC and guidance in the California Manual on Uniform Traffic Control Devices (CA MUTCD) to complete these studies and determine enforceable speed limits.

Figure 1 shows the process the City uses to establish or update a speed limit through an E&TS. The process starts by measuring how fast vehicles are traveling and identifying the 85th-percentile speed, meaning the posted speed limit is based on the speed most drivers are already traveling. That speed is rounded to the nearest 5 mph. State law also allowed Cities to lower speed limits an additional 5 mph under limited conditions based on documented roadway and safety conditions, such as features not readily apparent to drivers or streets with high pedestrian or bicycle activity.

The City then confirms that the recommended speed limit is reasonable and appropriate. In some cases, the existing or prior speed limit may be retained. Final speed limits are adopted by City Council and implemented through updated signage.

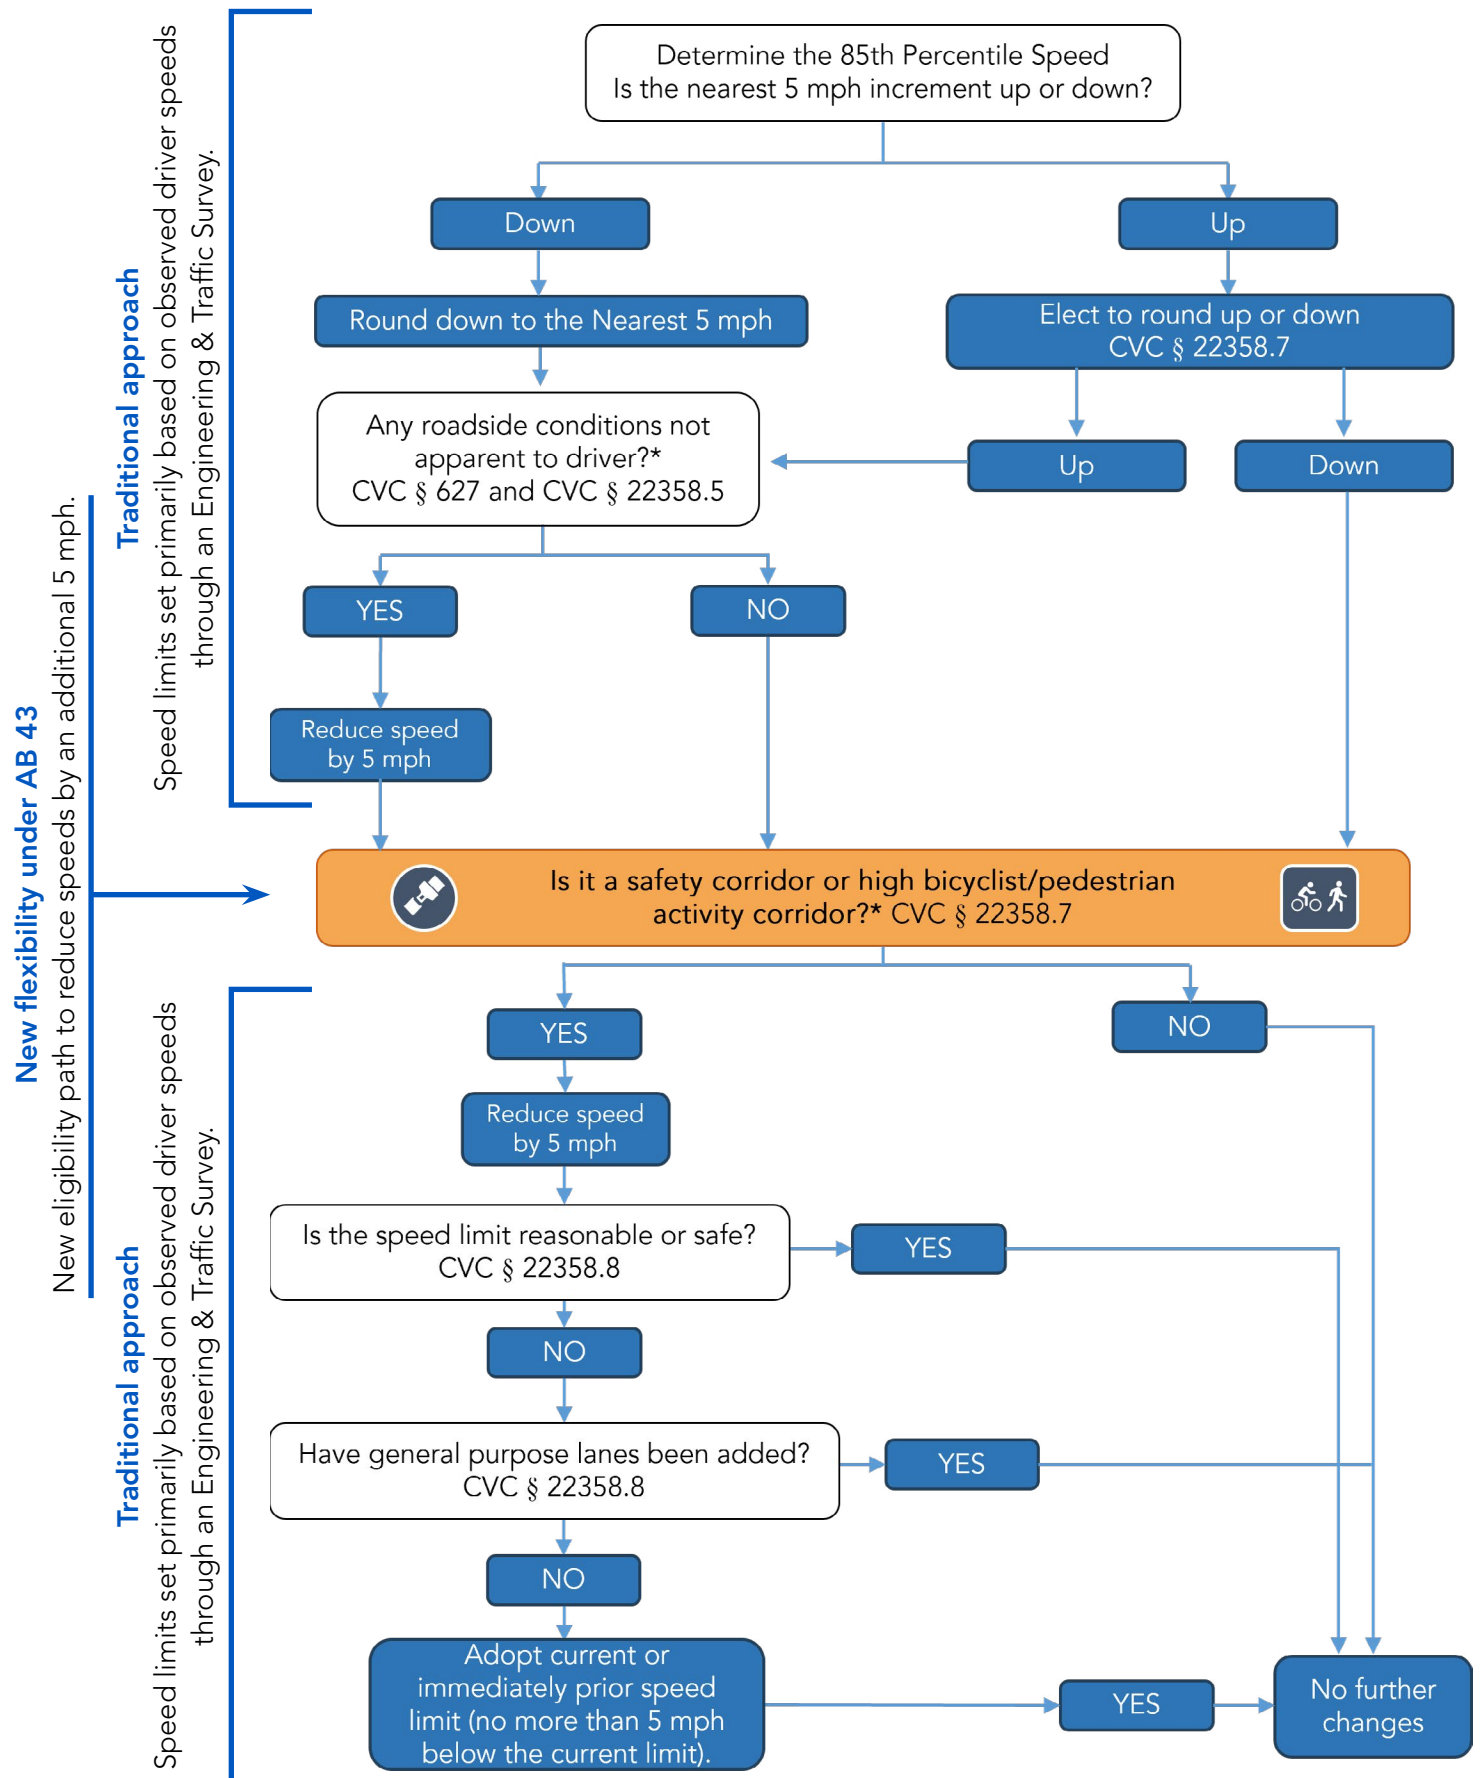

Once a speed limit is established, it must be periodically reviewed and updated to remain enforceable. During this update process, the City evaluates whether observed speeds, crash patterns, or street conditions have changed substantially since the prior study.

While this process has long helped ensure consistency and enforceability, it has also historically limited the City's ability to proactively lower speed limits in locations where safety risks are highest. Recent changes in state law were adopted to address this challenge.

The City's Transportation Department sets speed limits using Engineering and Traffic Surveys, based on the 85th-percentile speed. New state laws allow additional reductions in high-risk and high-activity areas.

Note: speed limits may be lowered based on designation as a safety corridor or a high bicyclist/pedestrian activity corridor, with or without a separate roadside conditions analysis.*

What the Recent State Laws Changed

California has adopted new laws that give cities greater flexibility to set speed limits based on safety and street context, not only on how fast people are already driving. Assembly Bills 43, 1938, and 382 expanded local authority to reduce speeds in locations where lower speeds are critical for preventing serious injuries and fatalities.

- > Assembly Bill 43 (AB 43) allows cities to reduce speed limits beyond the traditional 85th-percentile approach by introducing safety-based categories where lower speeds are appropriate, such as high-crash corridors, streets with significant walking and biking activity, and commercial areas.
- > Assembly Bill 1938 (AB 1938) clarified that this new flexibility was intended to add to, not replace, existing safety tools. It also set limits on how speed reductions may be applied, including a cap of approximately 12.4 mph below the 85th-percentile speed and allowing speed limits to be rounded down to standard 5 mph increments.
- > Assembly Bill 382 (AB 382) focuses on school safety. It authorizes a 20 mph speed limit in school zones through January 1, 2031, and establishes a mandatory 20 mph school zone speed limit statewide beginning in 2031. In certain residential school zones, it also allows speed limits as low as 15 mph under defined conditions.

Together, these laws allow speed limits to better reflect safety risk and how streets are used, while remaining consistent with state requirements for enforceability.

New State Provisions for Safety-Based Speed Reductions

Under this updated framework, cities may lower speed limits in specific contexts where safety risks are higher and slower speeds are critical, as summarized below.

Safety Corridors

Streets with a higher number of crashes resulting in a death or serious injury.

What the law allows: Speed limits may be reduced by up to 5 mph on designated corridors where severe crashes are concentrated, even if higher speeds are common today.

Corridors that Generate High Concentrations of Bicyclists or Pedestrians

Streets where walking and biking are expected due to nearby destinations or the presence of sidewalks, bike lanes, or transit.

What the law allows: Speed limits may be reduced by up to 5 mph on streets where people walking or biking are likely to be present, based on surrounding land uses and facilities.

Business Activity District

Commercial streets where frequent parking, loading, and street crossings increase interactions between vehicles and people.

What the law allows: Speed limits may be reduced to 25 mph or 20 mph on qualifying commercial streets to better match the level of activity and conflict along the corridor.

School Zones

Streets near schools where children are regularly walking, biking, or being dropped off and picked up.

What the law allows: Speed limits may be reduced to 15 mph or 20 mph close to schools, and to 25 mph on nearby approach streets, depending on street characteristics and location.

SAFETY CORRIDORS

Streets where fatal or serious injury crashes have occurred in the past are an important focus for safety improvements. These crashes are not random, and locations with a history of severe crash outcomes often share characteristics that increase the risk of future harm. For this reason, recent changes in state law allow cities to lower speed limits on streets with documented fatal and serious injury history as part of broader safety efforts.

Where Safety Corridors Are Allowed

AB 43 allows cities to designate Safety Corridors on streets with a high concentration of fatal and serious injury crashes. Within these corridors, cities are allowed to reduce the posted speed limit by up to 5 mph beyond what would typically be permitted.

To ensure this tool is focused on the streets with the greatest safety needs, state law and guidance place several limits on where Safety Corridors may be applied:

- > Safety Corridors may only be designated on streets that are part of a city's E&TS network, where speed limits have been formally studied and set.
- > Speed reductions must be supported by safety concerns, including a history of fatal or serious injury crashes.
- > Safety Corridors may not exceed one-fifth, or 20 percent, of a city's overall roadway network, helping keep the designation targeted rather than widespread.

How the City Identified Safety Corridors

For this Plan, the City used a system-wide, data-informed approach to identify Safety Corridors. Rather than focusing only on locations with multiple past fatal crashes, the City looked at corridors that combine severe crash history with street characteristics known to increase the risk of serious injury or death. This allows the City to proactively address safety risk factors and reduce the potential for severe crashes.

A key input to this work was the City's Systemic Safety Analysis, which reviewed 10 years of crash data to understand where and how fatal crashes tend to occur. The analysis identified common intersection characteristics that are more frequently associated with severe crashes across the city. Intersections that share these characteristics include those that meet the following three criteria:

- > Involve a 4-lane street intersecting with a 2-lane street.
- > Are located on transit routes.
- > Experienced three or more injury crashes over a 10-year period.

Although these intersections represent only a small portion of all intersections in the City, they account for approximately one-quarter of fatal intersection crashes.

To identify Safety Corridors, the City evaluated roadway segments within the E&TS network, which includes approximately 842 centerline miles of streets. Segments were identified as eligible Safety Corridors if they meet both of the following criteria:

- > Experienced at least one fatal or serious injury crash in the past 5-year period.
- > Included an intersection identified through the Systemic Safety Analysis.

This approach helps focus attention on corridors with elevated risk, even where crash history alone may not fully reflect future safety concerns.

Analysis Results

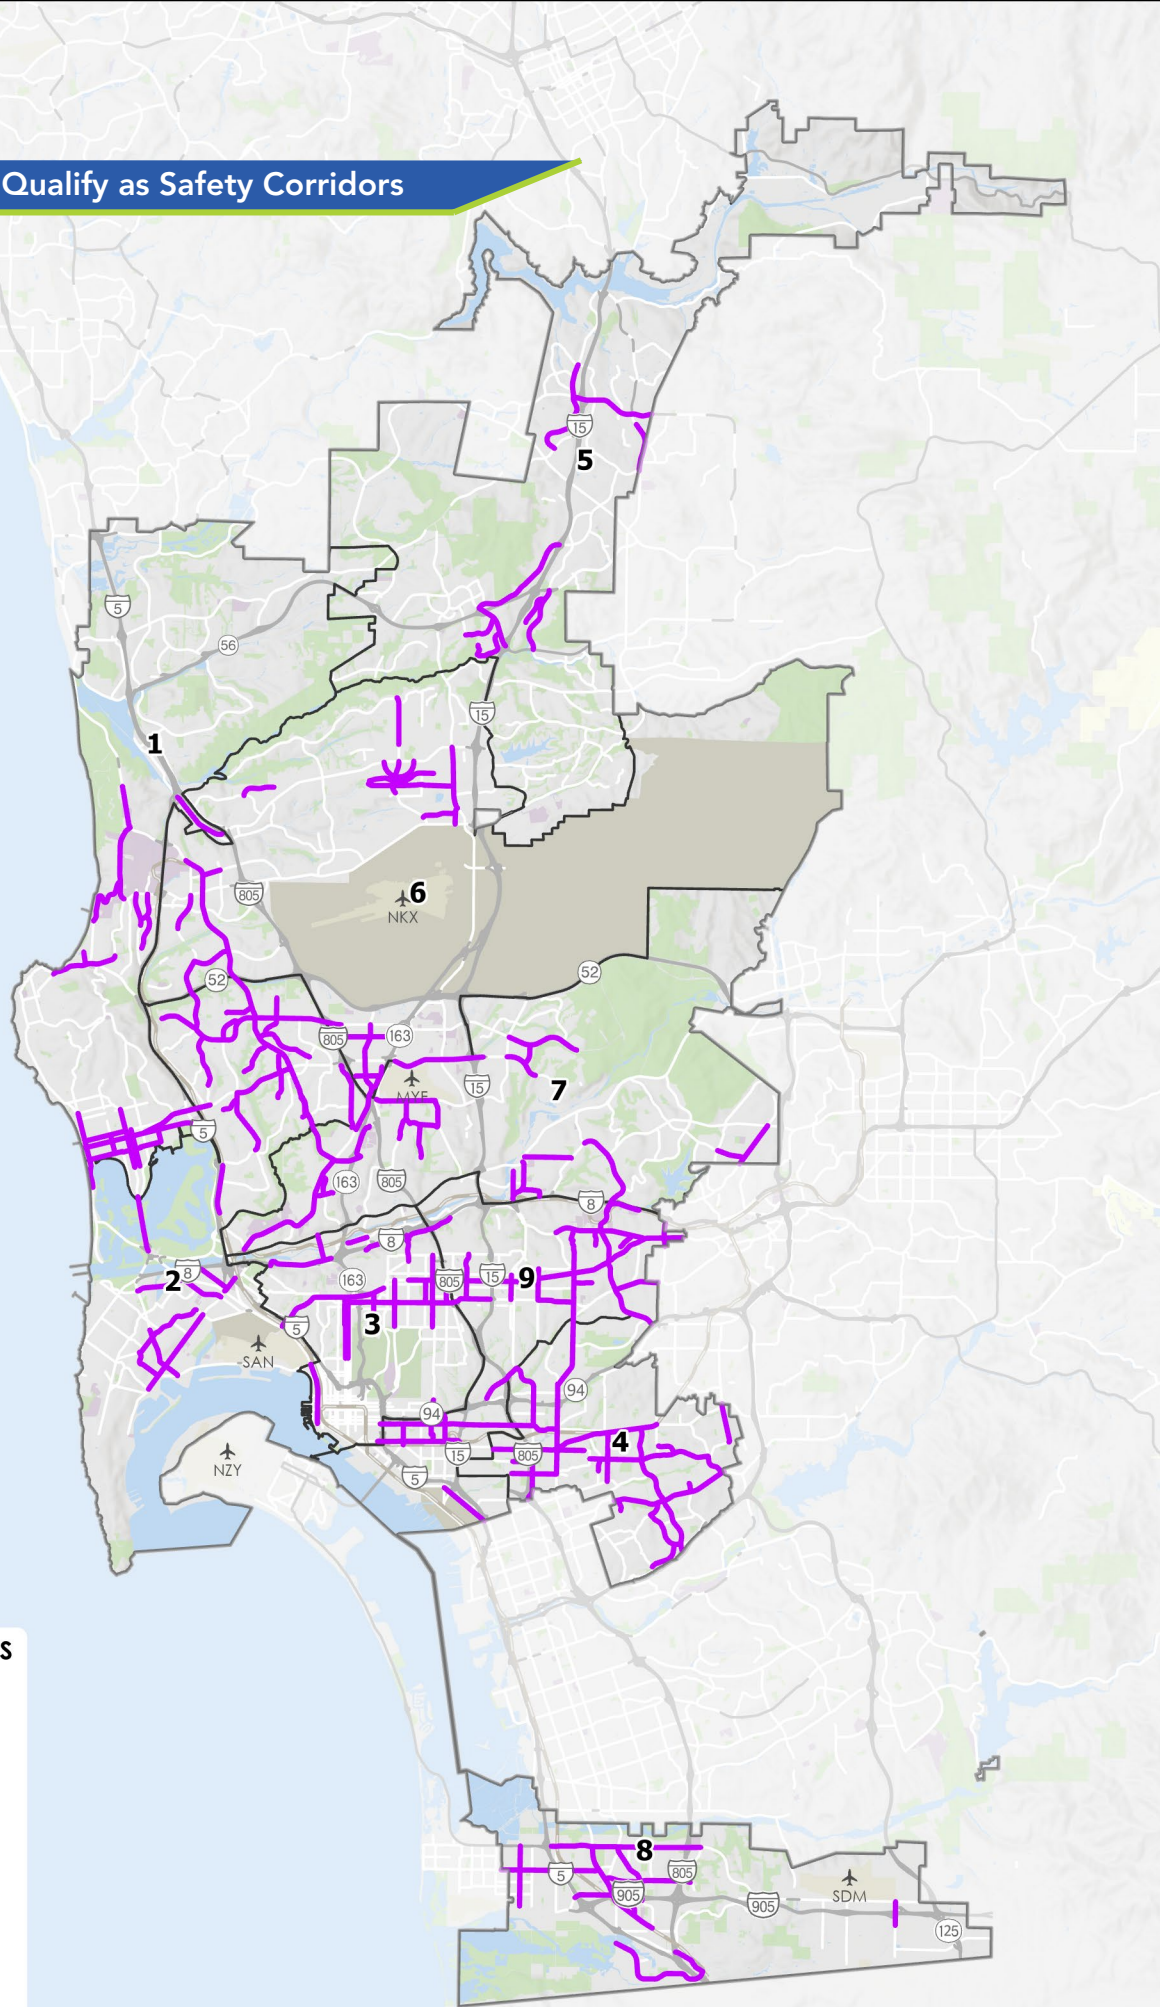

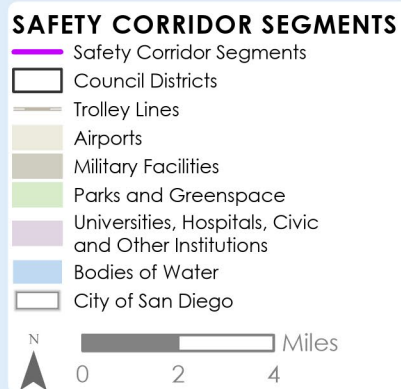

Based on this assessment, approximately 189.6 centerline miles of roadway qualify as Safety Corridors eligible for an additional 5 mph speed reduction. These corridors fall within the state limit on Safety Corridor coverage, so no additional prioritization was required.

Figure 2 shows the locations of identified Safety Corridors. A detailed list of segments, organized by City Council District, is provided in Appendix A.

HIGH PEDESTRIAN & BICYCLIST ACTIVITY CORRIDORS

Streets with higher levels of walking and bicycling have an increased risk of serious injury when crashes occur, particularly when vehicle speeds are high. This risk is greatest near destinations, transit stops, and along streets with existing or planned pedestrian and bicycle infrastructure. Recognizing these conditions, recent changes in state law allow cities to lower speed limits on streets where people are expected to be walking and biking more frequently.

What State Law Allows

AB 43 allows cities to reduce speed limits on streets that serve land uses or facilities that generate high concentrations of pedestrians or bicyclists. This provision allows cities to lower posted speed limits by up to 5 mph beyond what would typically be permitted under the traditional speed-setting process.

As with Safety Corridors, this authority applies only to streets that are part of a city's Engineering and Traffic Survey (E&TS) network, where speed limits were established through formal studies.

State law allows cities to consider a wide range of pedestrian and bicyclist activity generators when determining eligibility. These generators describe places and features where people are more likely to be walking, biking, or crossing streets. Table 1 summarizes the categories of pedestrian and bicyclist generators considered under state law, including land uses, transit access, pedestrian and bicycle infrastructure, demographic factors, and local safety findings.

How the City Identified High Pedestrian & Bicyclist Activity Corridors

While state law allows cities to broadly consider pedestrian and bicyclist activity when reducing speed limits, the City of San Diego applied this authority using a focused, safety-based framework. The goal was to prioritize corridors where people are expected to be walking and biking and where crash risk is higher, rather than applying speed reductions based solely on the presence of destinations or infrastructure.

To help focus this effort, the City incorporated findings from the Systemic Safety Analysis described in the previous chapter. That analysis identified specific intersection characteristics associated with higher crash risk, including intersections located along transit routes. Because bus stops generate pedestrian and bicyclist activity as people travel to and from transit, intersections identified through the Systemic Safety Analysis were used as a screening factor to help target corridors with both expected activity and elevated safety risk.

Using geographic analysis, the City identified roadway segments within the E&TS network that met both of the following conditions:

- > Located within 1,320 feet of a sidewalk, bikeway, and/or transit priority area.
- > Included an intersection identified through the Systemic Safety Analysis.

This approach allowed the City to apply speed reductions in locations where walking and biking are expected and where safety risk is higher, while remaining consistent with state law requirements.

Analysis Results

Based on this assessment, approximately 222.5 centerline miles qualify as High Pedestrian & Bicyclist Activity Corridors eligible for an additional 5 mph speed reduction under AB 43. These corridors represent locations where people are already walking and biking and where lower speeds can meaningfully reduce the risk of serious injury.

All roadway segments identified as Safety Corridors also qualify under this category. Where a segment qualifies under multiple provisions, only one 5 mph reduction may be applied, consistent with state law. Therefore, an additional net 32.6 centerline miles are available for reduction solely because of the high pedestrian and bicyclist activity criteria.

Figure 3 illustrates the locations of identified High Pedestrian & Bicyclist Activity Corridors. A detailed list of segments, organized by City Council District, is provided in Appendix B.

All 189.6 miles of Safety Corridors also qualify under this category.

BUSINESS ACTIVITY DISTRICTS

Streets in business districts often have more people crossing the street, entering and exiting parked vehicles, loading goods, and accessing nearby shops and services. These everyday movements increase interactions between people and vehicles, particularly along streets that function as local destinations rather than high-speed travel routes. When vehicle speeds are high in these environments, even minor conflicts can result in serious injuries.

Recognizing these conditions, recent changes in California law allow cities to lower speed limits on streets with concentrated business activity so that posted speeds better reflect how these streets are used.

What State Law Allows

Under AB 43, the California Vehicle Code allows cities to designate Business Activity Districts and lower speed limits on streets where commercial activity creates frequent interactions between people and vehicles.

State law allows a city to establish a 20 mph or 25 mph prima facie speed limit on a street segment if all of the following conditions are met:

- > The street's current posted speed limit is 25 mph or 30 mph.
- > The street has four travel lanes or fewer.
- > The street meets at least three of the following four conditions, which indicate regular business activity and crossings:
 - At least half of the properties along the street are retail or dining uses that open directly onto the sidewalk, including outdoor dining.
 - On-street parking is present, whether parallel, diagonal, or perpendicular.
 - Traffic signals or stop signs control traffic at intervals of 600 feet or less.
 - Marked crosswalks are present that are not controlled by a traffic signal or stop sign.

The noted criteria are intended to identify streets that function as local business destinations, where people are frequently parking, crossing the street, and accessing storefronts.

Unlike Safety Corridors and High Pedestrian & Bicyclist Activity Corridors, Business Activity Districts do not need to be part of the Engineering and Traffic Survey (E&TS) network. This allows cities to lower speeds on commercial streets that already operate at lower speeds but experience high levels of activity and conflict.

How the City Identified Business Activity Districts

To identify potential Business Activity District streets, the City developed a consistent approach using available data that is practical to implement and reflects how commercial streets function. This approach focused on identifying street segments where lower speeds are most appropriate given the level of business activity and street use.

Using geographic analysis, the City identified roadway segments that met all of the following conditions:

- > Has a current posted speed of 25 or 30 mph and four travel lanes or fewer.
- > Is at least .25 miles long. Shorter segments were excluded because very short speed zones can be difficult to sign, enforce, and understand for people driving.
- > Is located within an area of concentrated commercial activity. To identify these areas consistently across the city, the City used existing Business Improvement Districts (BIDs), Property Business Improvement Districts (PBIDs), and Maintenance Assessment Districts (MADs) maintained by the City's Economic Development Department. These districts represent locations where businesses have already organized around shared services and investments, and where commercial activity is expected to occur regularly. Using these districts provided a practical, block-by-block way to identify business-focused streets citywide without requiring a parcel-by-parcel review.
- > Meets the state criteria for on-street parking, traffic signals, and/or marked crosswalks.
- > Is not already identified as Safety Corridors or High Pedestrian & Bicyclist Activity Corridors. These corridors were removed to avoid overlap and ensure each street is assigned to the most appropriate speed-reduction category.

Analysis Results

Based on this assessment, 58.7 centerline miles of roadway qualify as Business Activity Districts eligible for an additional 5 mph speed reduction under AB 43.

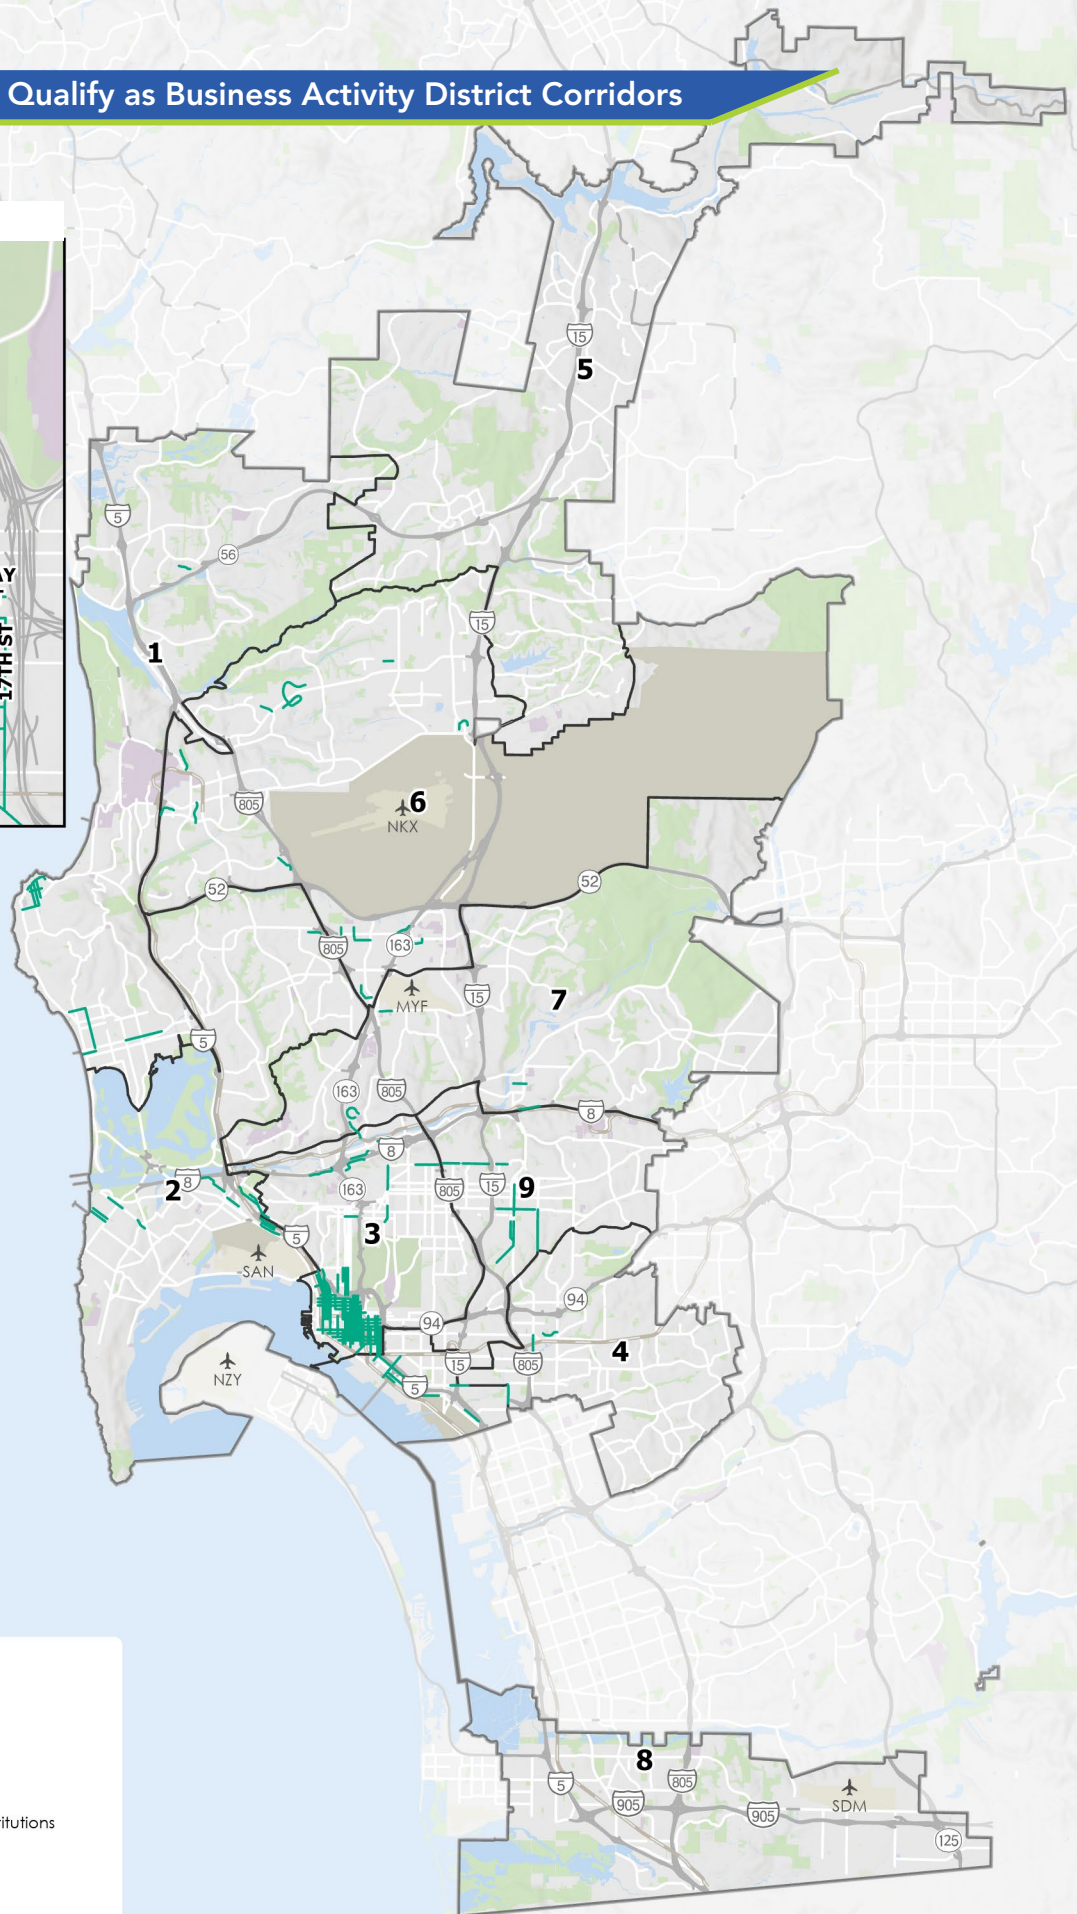

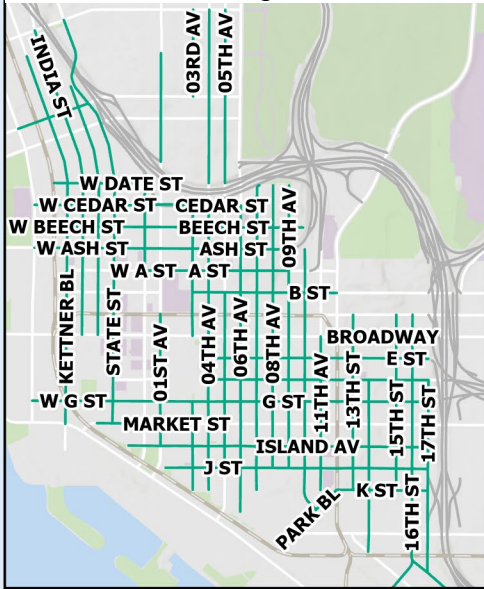

Figure 4 illustrates the locations of the identified Business Activity District segments. A detailed list of qualifying segments, organized by City Council District, is provided in Appendix C.

58.7 centerline miles qualify for reduced speed limits of 25 mph or 20 mph as Business Activity Districts because they are commercial streets with frequent parking, crossings, and business access that meet state criteria for lower speeds.

SCHOOL ZONES

School areas are some of the busiest places in a neighborhood. Children are walking, biking, riding transit, and being dropped off and picked up, often during short windows when traffic is heaviest. With many people moving in different ways at the same time, lower vehicle speeds can help reduce the risk that a mistake or conflict results in a serious injury. For this reason, California law gives cities specific authority to lower speed limits near schools, even when nearby streets might otherwise operate at higher speeds.

What State Law Allows

California law allows cities to establish lower speed limits near schools to better protect children and families traveling to and from school. Under state law, cities may:

- > Set 15 mph school zone speed limits within 500 feet of a school on qualifying residential streets.
- > Set 25 mph school zone approach speeds between 501 and 1,000 feet of a school on qualifying streets.

For a street to qualify under state law, it must meet basic residential street conditions, including:

- > No more than two travel lanes, reflecting typical neighborhood street design.
- > An existing posted speed limit of 30 mph or lower, ensuring school zone speeds are applied to lower-speed streets rather than high-speed arterials.

School zone speed limits follow a separate section of the California Vehicle Code and do not require an Engineering and Traffic Survey. However, the City must still verify street conditions and install clear signage showing where school zone speed limits begin and end.

How the City Identified School Zone Opportunities

As part of this Plan, the City conducted a citywide review to understand where school zone speed limits could be applied under state law. This review was designed to be consistent across neighborhoods and focused on distance from schools and basic street characteristics, rather than crash history or prior speed studies.

To identify potential school zone opportunities, the City reviewed streets citywide and identified segments that met all of the following conditions, where applicable:

- > Is located within 500 feet of a school or within 501-1,000 feet of a school.
- > Is a residential street layout with two travel lanes or fewer.
- > Has a posted speed of 30 mph or lower, or is on a street where the City may lower speeds to 30 mph through this Plan. This includes streets identified as Safety Corridors, High Pedestrian & Bicyclist Activity Corridors, and Business Activity Districts. This approach lets the City plan school zone coverage using both today's street conditions and future speed reductions, so speeds can be lowered as much as possible where they are needed most.

Based on this analysis, streets were identified as:

- > Potential 15 mph school zone candidates if they are within 500 feet of a school.
- > Potential 25 mph school zone approach segments if they are within 501–1,000 feet from the school.

This approach allows the City to identify school zone opportunities accurately at a neighborhood scale while maintaining a clear, staged process that aligns with state law.

Analysis Results

Based on this assessment, approximately 371.1 centerline miles of roadway within 500 feet of schools may qualify for 15 mph or 20 mph school zone speed limits. Approximately 27.1 centerline miles of roadway located 501 to 1,000 feet from schools may qualify for 25 mph school zone approach speeds.

Figure 5 and Figure 6 illustrate the locations of these school zone opportunity areas. Appendix D contains a table listing eligible street segments within 500 feet of schools, organized by City Council District. Appendix E contains a table listing the eligible street segments between 501-1,000 feet of schools, organized by City Council District.

Implementing School Speed Zones

This analysis identifies where school zone speed limits could be applied under state law, but it does not set final speed limits or determine exactly where signs will be placed. Those decisions are made through findings adopted by San Diego City Council.

Before any school zone speed limits are implemented, the California Vehicle Code (CVC) requires the City to complete additional on-the-ground work. This includes confirming street conditions, measuring exact distances near schools, and determining where school zones should begin and end.

As a result, this chapter should be understood as a citywide list of school zone opportunity areas, not a final map of where school zone speed limits will change. These findings provide a foundation for future field engineering and evaluation to determine the final locations for school zone speed limit signs.

As a result of the application of new school zone criteria, this plan has identified 371.1 centerline miles as eligible for 15 mph or 20 mph school zone speeds because they are within 500 feet of a school. An additional 27.1 centerline miles are eligible for 25 mph approach speeds because they are between 501 and 1,000 feet of schools.

CONCLUSION AND NEXT STEPS

This Comprehensive Speed Management Plan identifies where speed limit reductions may be allowed under state law and where they may be most effective at improving safety on San Diego's streets. Using a consistent, citywide, data-informed approach, the Plan evaluates streets across multiple categories to understand where lower speeds could help to reduce the risk of fatal and serious injury crashes.

Based on this assessment, over 20 percent of San Diego's roadway network is eligible for potential speed limit reductions under the provisions of AB 43, AB 1938, and AB 382. Specifically, the Plan finds:

Safety Corridors: 189.6 centerline miles qualify for an additional 5 mph reduction as Safety Corridors based on meeting state-defined eligibility criteria, which include of at least one fatal or serious injury collision and contain street intersection characteristics identified in the City's 2024 Systemic Safety Analysis.

High Pedestrian & Bicyclist Activity Corridors: 32.6 centerline miles qualify for an additional 5 mph reduction as High Pedestrian & Bicyclist Activity Corridors because they are within 1,320 feet of a sidewalk, bikeway, and/or transportation priority area and contain an intersection identified in the City's 2024 Systemic Safety Analysis. All 189.6 miles of Safety Corridors also qualify under this category.

Business Activity Districts: 58.7 centerline miles qualify for reduced speed limits of 25 mph or 20 mph as Business Activity Districts because they are commercial streets with frequent parking, crossings, and business access that meet state criteria for lower speeds.

School Zones: 371.1 centerline miles are eligible for 15 mph or 20 mph school zone speeds because they are within 500 feet of a school. An additional 27.1 centerline miles are eligible for 25 mph approach speeds because they are between 501 and 1,000 feet of schools.

This Comprehensive Speed Management Plan identifies opportunities to reduce speed limits on over 20% of San Diego's streets (679.1 centerline miles), made possible by recent changes in California law, and provides a clear path for advancing those changes.

How the Plan Will Be Used

The new state laws referenced in this Plan expand the City's ability to set context-sensitive speed limits that better reflect safety needs, street design, and how streets are used, rather than relying only on how fast people currently drive. As new Engineering and Traffic Surveys (E&TS) are completed, or existing studies are updated, the criteria in this Plan will be applied consistently to ensure posted speed limits align with:

- > Street context and surrounding land uses.
- > Safety conditions and crash history.
- > Local priorities and community needs.
- > California Vehicle Code and CA MUTCD requirements.

Speed Management and the Safe System Approach

Lowering speed limits is an important safety tool, but it works best as part of a broader Safe System approach. The Safe System approach is an international roadway safety framework that has been adopted nationally by the Federal Highway Administration (FHWA). It recognizes that people make mistakes and emphasizes designing streets, setting safer speeds, and coordinating safety strategies so those mistakes do not result in serious injury or death.

The Safe System approach is built around five interconnected elements:

- > Safer speeds
- > Safer streets
- > Safer vehicles
- > Safer people
- > Post-crash care

Lower speed limits create the foundation for safer streets, but lasting safety improvements come from combining speed management with projects and programs that help people naturally drive at safer speeds. This includes street design changes, targeted safety improvements, education, and enforcement working together. Many of the streets identified in this Plan align with locations where the City has identified elevated safety risk or has planned or ongoing safety improvements.

Looking Ahead

This Plan identifies speed reduction opportunities on over 20 percent of the City's street network. Implementing these changes will require time, coordination, and resources, including field work and signage updates.

Taken together, this Plan represents an important step toward achieving San Diego's Vision Zero goals. By using new state authority, applying a data-informed approach, and integrating speed management into a broader safety strategy, the City is advancing a clearer path toward Safe Streets for All San Diegans.
