

“I fought against Balboa Park fees because it was the right thing to do. Josh is running to make San Diego more affordable and get our city on the right track.”

Stephen Whitburn
City of San Diego Councilmember

Josh Coyne has spent his career serving our city. As an educator, LGBTQ advocate, and nonprofit executive, Josh is the experienced progressive leader we can count on to:

- Improve municipal services - repairing roads and streetlights
- Defend San Diego against an extremist federal government
- Lower the high cost of living for San Diegans
- Create dedicated revenue for infrastructure and public safety

For years, Josh has led an initiative that brings public/private resources to reduce homelessness on our streets, stepping in when homelessness was at its worst.

Josh began his career as a youth crisis counselor and has never stopped fighting for people targeted simply for who they are. With federal forces inciting chaos on our streets and the growing divide between residents and local government, Josh is bringing back open, consistent leadership.

As your councilmember, Josh is ready to rebuild trust, lower rising costs that hold working families back, and fight for a better San Diego.
