

I am a lifelong San Diegan and current MBA student with a diverse professional background across science, small business, and hands-on local work. I work in biotechnology and laboratory operations, where I have supported research and managed complex technical processes. Alongside my scientific work, I run a small art business through my Etsy shop, where I design and sell original prints and manage the day-to-day operations of a small independent business.

I have also worked directly in our community painting homes and cleaning gutters for District 2 residents, which has given me firsthand experience with the everyday concerns of local homeowners and working families.

These experiences have developed my skills in problem solving, accountability, and practical decision making. I understand both the challenges of running a small business and the realities of working with my hands in our neighborhoods.

I am not backed by corporations or special interests, and I have no business ties influencing my work. I bring an independent perspective, a strong work ethic, and a commitment to thoughtful, practical leadership for the residents of San Diego.
