Item 3: Non-Agenda Public Comment

One member of the public addressed the Board to share that safe detours for cyclists need to be provided when there is construction on City roads per the City’s Whitebook.

Item 4: Streets for All (Information)

Mobility Board Liaisons, Philip Trom and Sarah Pierce, presented an overview of Streets for All, the City's draft slow streets manual. The presentation included an overview of the proposed community-led program including: a summary of the proposed street types and criteria used to determine the eligible street network; an overview of the materials and traffic calming treatments featured in the manual; and an explanation of the community-led implementation process. The presentation also included an overview of the Streets for All webpage contents.

Five public commenters addressed the Board on this item. Their comments included: inquiring about the draft Streets for All network to determine if future changes could be made; asking if best practices (e.g. reductions of fees/fee waivers or changes to insurance requirements) from other cities with similar programs were taken into account when developing this program; discussing the community consensus threshold (75%) and requirement specifics like how to account for vacant lots, vacation properties, or renters; concerns about lower-income communities being able to fund local projects; suggesting that park roads become eligible for Streets for All; suggesting that "calm streets" or promenade projects for business streets be included in the manual; and suggesting that the City look for ways to streamline and simplify the implementation process.

Board member discussion focused on: encouraging the City to seek grant funding or allocate existing resources to help pay for Streets for All projects; inquiring about enforcement for project implementation; clarifying what emergency corridors are; asking how the public was being educated about the program; discussing the community consensus thresholds (alternatives suggested were 67%, a different acceptance rate for a demonstration vs. longer-term projects or for each street type, and an option to move the project forward unless a certain threshold of community members "opted out" of the project); the need to streamline the permit process and define a clear path for how projects can move from quick-build community projects to permanent City infrastructure; encouraging the City to provide the resources, funding, and staff support needed for project implementation; encouraging the City to make an easier process for those seeking to implement short-term demonstration projects using simple materials; a suggestion to cross-promote Streets for All at the Council District level; the need for a training process for staff in the Development Services Department who may be working on reviewing and permitting these projects; and a suggestion to provide the public with a running list of grants that could be used to fund project implementation.
