Description of plants sent from U.S. Govt. Station, Chico, Cal

- 1 Acacia longifolia, yellow flowered tree from Australia (suitable for street tree)
- 2 Pithecellobium unguis-cati from Barbados, very attractive, small tree much used as a border shrub or hedge plant. It is made conspicuous by its heavy burden of dense panicles of pods, open and twisted when ripe and showing the shiny, black, small seeds, to each of which is attached a white arillus.
- 3 Barleria Flava from Mindoro, Philippine Islands
A dwarf shrub belonging to the order of Acanthaceae. This species produces small yellow flowers arranged in terminal spikes, and flowers very abundantly over a period of six months. In its native habitat the shrub succeeds well in shallow, rocky soil at sea level where exposed to nearly continuous drought from January to May.
- 4 Lagerstromia speciosa from Bureau of Agriculture
Tamao, Bataan, Philippine Islands A strong growing deciduous shrub, reaching a height of 10 to 25 feet, producing an abundance of fringed flowers in spring and summer

Description of Plants received from the U.S. Govt station, Yarrow, Maryland

1 Dimocarpus longan - from Southern China

Slow growing fruit tree resembling the lychee, but smaller and with smaller fruit, $\frac{1}{2}$ to 1 inch in diameter, quite round nearly smooth, and of a dusky brown color. Requires moist warm climate

2 Inga edulis from Central America to the Amazon Valley. Medium sized leguminous tree, producing curiously shaped pods, about an inch thick and one to two feet long, usually twisted and crooked. The seeds are surrounded by an acidulous, whitish edible pulp of a rather indifferent flavor.

3 Glycosmis pentaphylla

Spineless, evergreen shrub, or small tree, 20 feet high, with glossy, pinnate leaves and small fragrant, white flowers, produced freely in June & July. The edible berries are salmon pink in color and are sometimes used for preserving.

4 Juillaja saponaria from Juillay

Tall evergreen tree, 50 to 60 feet high. Its whitish inner bark forms an important export from Chile. It is chipped or ground and used as a substitute for soap. Claimed to remove stains and to impart a remarkable luster to wool. Will probably stand in light frost.

5 Jatropha speciosa from Duraznillo Mexico

Deciduous shrub or small tree, occurring wild in Eastern Mexico; prolific in the production of its seeds which are rich in oil. For preliminary testing for its possible value as an oil producer

note = Su # 47216 in 1920 list

6 Spathodea campanulata from Sockaboeni, Java

A beautiful tree 40 to 60 feet high with large orange colored flowers in clusters, and leaves resembling those of a black walnut. Cultivated as a street tree in Java. One of the showiest flowering trees in the tropics

7 Rheedia macrophylla

Medium sized evergreen tree with handsome foliage and yellow or orange colored fruits, the size of a hen's egg, with a distinct break at the calyx end. The fruits contain 4 seeds, surrounded by a small quantity of refreshing, acidulous pulp of pleasant flavor.
