In this tough economy, your city government should do everything we can to create and keep businesses here in San Diego. It is with this strong belief that the City Council created the Citizen's Revenue Review and Economic Competitiveness Commission. The Commission is charged with examining our revenue sources and looking at how the City can jumpstart our local economy.

A major factor towards the success of the Commission lies with your suggestions on what needs to be eliminated, improved upon, and implemented. We need your input and your ideas to keep San Diego competitive in all areas. Please present the Commission with specific recommendations that affect your industry.

All meetings are open to the public. Please visit the Commission's website for specific meeting times, documents, and more information at www.sandiego.gov/crrecc/.

YOU MAY WANT TO KNOW:

District Four's Chollas View neighborhood applauds drop in crime rate.

The overall crime rate throughout District Four is down. The San Diego Union Tribune recently brought attention to the 44 percent crime reduction in our Chollas View neighborhood since 2006, down 28 percent from last year.

Being perceived as a "former hotbed of crime," where teenagers terrorized the neighborhood and prevalent gang activity existed, now, perceptions of Chollas View are taking a positive turn.

The drop in both violent and property crimes can be attributed to many factors including community-oriented policing and crime prevention programs.

I am thankful for the ongoing efforts of the residents, the San Diego Police Department, Project Safeway, the CNC and Overcoming Gangs and Beyond, the San Diego Gang Commission and the Chollas View Community Council for making the area safer and discouraging illegal activity. Chollas View is bordered by the Martin Luther King Freeway, Euclid Avenue, Market Street and Interstate 805.
