Miss Scripps had rounded out far more than the usual span of human life, having reached the advanced age of ninety-five years, but, even in those later years, when the average man or woman thinks life's work has long been ended, she ever maintained the keenest interest in all affairs of a nature which meant the upbuilding of her City, County and State.

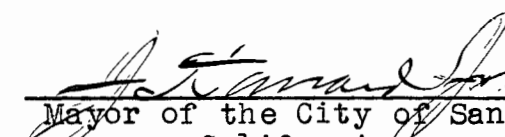

The City of San Diego and its immediate environs have long been the recipients of her most generous bounty, and monuments to her beloved memory are to be found in buildings erected to benefit her fellow citizens and lead them along the lines of recreation, pleasure and mental culture.

At all times her accumulation of this world's goods has been shared most liberally for those causes which she has felt were for the public good. In many fields will be felt most keenly the loss of this sustaining co-operation which has been her contribution to the betterment of the community. From time to time official recognition has been given to the part which she has played in the development of her home City and State. It is now desired to make permanent record of the appreciation of this Council, representative body of the City of San Diego, of all she has done for those citizens of today and for those who shall come after them.

The City Clerk is hereby directed to embody the full text of this resolution in the minutes of the Council, and to send a copy thereof to the relatives of Miss Scripps."

2. MEMORIAL

We, the Mayor and members of the City Council of The City of San Diego, Sitting in regular session, hereby express our deep sorrow at the untimely passing of James MacMullen, Managing Editor of the San Diego Union and the San Diego Tribune. As the Managing Editor of these two newspapers of our city, his power was great in the molding of public opinion, yet he used that power only for the public weal and not for his own selfish interest. He saw the city grow and prosper, and to him belongs no small part for his contribution toward our city's development.

Our city has lost one of its best friends; the community, a most useful citizen. We extend to the immediate members of his family our deepest sympathy at so great a loss, but yet their sorrow is in a measure the sorrow of all the inhabitants of this city."
