

Article 6: Board and Commissions

Division 9: Human Relations Commission

(“Human Relations Commission” added 3–18–1991 by O–17614 N.S.)

§26.0901 Findings

The population of the City of San Diego is composed of people of various racial, religious, and ethnic groups. In this City, the practice of discrimination on the grounds of race, religion, color, national origin or ancestry, age, gender, sexual orientation, disability, medical condition, place of birth, citizenship, marital status, military service, or any other characteristic protected by applicable federal, state, or local laws, and the exploitation of prejudice related thereto adversely affects members of the above groups.

Such discriminatory practices are inimical to the public welfare and good order in that they: (1) impede social and economic progress for the entire citizenry by preventing members of the above groups from achieving full development of their individual potentialities and from contributing fully to the cultural and business life of the community; (2) constantly frustrate, degrade, and embitter members of the above groups, thereby diminishing their initiative and interest in the community; and (3) tend to create intergroup hostilities and anti-social behavior.

The products of discrimination accumulate continuously, with the result that the social, economic, and educational gaps between those suffering discrimination and the rest of the community constantly widen. As a result, mere prohibition of present and future discrimination, while essential, will not reduce the inequalities and disadvantages which a history of discrimination has produced. Accordingly, remedial action must be initiated, encouraged, and coordinated, particularly educational programs to bring groups together to close gaps.

Experiences of other urban centers throughout the nation have proven the need for and the effectiveness of commissions empowered to study community, race, and human relations problems, to work with interested citizens to develop programs to ameliorate tensions and reduce cultural, social, and economic disadvantages, and to encourage and coordinate implementation of such programs consistent with the needs and rights of members of all groups in the community.

§26.0902 Purpose and Intent

It is the purpose and intent of this Division to create a Human Relations Commission for the City of San Diego which shall consult with and advise the Mayor, City Council, and City Manager on the rights of every inhabitant of the City of San Diego to equal economic, political, and educational opportunity, to equal accommodations in all business establishments in the City, and to equal service and protection by public agencies. The Commission shall give effect to such rights to eliminate prejudice and discrimination because of race, religion, color, national origin or ancestry, age, gender, sexual orientation, disability, medical condition, place of birth, citizenship, marital status, military service, or any other characteristic protected by applicable federal, state, or local laws, and shall advise the Mayor, City Council, and City Manager on methods to inform the inhabitants of the City of San Diego of developments in human relations. The Commission shall also provide expert advice and assistance to the Mayor, City Council, and the City Manager in order that all officers, agencies, boards, departments, and employees of the City of San Diego may take ameliorative steps to enhance peace and good order, and provide equal opportunity for and good will toward all people. Further, the Commission may recommend use of mediation and/or conciliation processes to attempt to eliminate alleged unfair or unlawful discriminatory practices as defined herein.

Nor shall anything in this Division be implemented in a way that overlaps already existing federal or state programs; rather, federal or state programs shall be utilized, or supplemented when necessary, appropriate, and feasible, to give effect to this Division.

- (e) If the Commission is unable to resolve an alleged unfair or unlawful practice, it may refer the aggrieved person or matter in dispute to the City Attorney or other appropriate prosecutorial or regulatory entity for appropriate legal action. The Commission shall, at the time of referring said matter, transmit to the City Attorney or other appropriate prosecutorial or regulatory entity a copy of its investigation, evidence, findings, and recommendations in the case.

The City Attorney or other appropriate prosecutorial or regulatory entity, in its discretion, may prosecute or proceed to secure from an appropriate court an order enjoining the defendant(s) from continuing or repeating such practice. If the Commission, prior to commencement of the court proceedings, as a result of its effort finds that the alleged violator no longer engages in the alleged unlawful practice described in the findings and complies with the recommendations of the Commission, the Commission may recommend to the City Attorney or other appropriate prosecutorial or regulatory entity that no such court proceedings be instituted.
