Piazza Design Concept:

Piazza Famiglia is a public plaza that is intended to create a new pedestrian friendly corridor in what is now a public roadway. The plaza has been designed to be a new focal piece of the Little Italy community, near downtown San Diego. The centrally located project is meant for multiple uses for both visitors and residents of the location. Such activities will include farmer's markets, performances, and special events. The design is open, well-lit, and linear to allow pedestrians to move comfortably throughout the space as well as allow the markets to be set up without blocking the passerby's experience. Ample seating areas have been provided for public use, along with designated spaces for movable mercato stalls and stage areas. A re-located specimen tree has been designed to fit in with additional low water use plant material. A large fountain on the east side of the site will be a primary focal point for the project entrance as well as being visible throughout the site.
